QUOTE

"Well this is new. It's nice having a way to keep track of these things, though - I can see myself putting in a lot of anecdotes about each of our heirlooms on it."

DESCRIPTION

. Has had a high level of familiarity with early home computers from back in the 1980s, but hasn't put much effort into keeping up with how computers have developed since then and doesn't use her computer very often now.

. Uses an outdated version of Windows and Internet Explorer - hasn't bothered looking into updating them.

. Her eyesight is failing - she finds it difficult to read small print, so when using her computer she uses Windows' DPI settings to enlarge the text on her screen.

. Has a lot of personal artifacts and heirlooms that her daughter, Yonah, has put into the register after going over them with her.

. Wishes to add some of her personal anecdotes to some of the artefacts on the register, and to have her husband with her as she does so so that her husband can weigh in as well, as well as to simply browse the register for nostalgia's sake.

. Tasks: Attaching events (personal anecdotes) to items in the register (and writing descriptions/stories of those events, possibly uploading media to attach to those events), and then browsing the register by timeline of events.
